Government Claims De Lorean Co-Defendant Admitted Drug Smuggling

Government agencies including the Drug Enforcement Administration, the National Security Council, the CIA and the FBI have been ordered by the court to turn over documents in the John De Lorean drug smuggling case.

The U.S. government agencies were ordered in U.S. District Court on Thursday to turn over any documents on De Lorean by Aug. 31.

Howard Weitzman, an attorney for De Lorean, said he had previously been denied access to the records.

"Why would all these agencies have documents and refuse to turn them over to Mr. De Lorean's attorney? Now that's the real question," he said.
